I. Executive Summary

The Maine Biennial Hazardous Waste Report for 2013 and 2014 has been prepared by the Maine Department of Environmental Protection to fulfill the requirement of 38 M.R.S.A. § 1319-Q(2) for biennial reporting on the generation, transportation, and handling of hazardous waste in Maine.

The report indicates that during calendar years 2013 and 2014 (Table 1), respectively, 21,233,161 pounds and 24,736,683 pounds of hazardous waste were generated in Maine. These totals include hazardous waste generated from manufacturing and commercial activities, as well as hazardous wastes generated from clean-up/remediation projects in Maine.

A total of 20,641,899 pounds of hazardous waste was exported from Maine generators to out-of-state facilities in 2013, and a total of 23,861,239 pounds of hazardous waste was exported in 2014 (Table 4).

Two licensed commercial hazardous waste facilities in Maine accept wastes from generators. The two facilities received 341,538 pounds and 908,107 pounds of hazardous waste from Maine generators in 2013 and 2014, respectively. Additionally, 36,054 pounds of hazardous waste was imported from out-of-state generators to Maine's commercial hazardous waste facilities in 2013, while 39,369 pounds of hazardous waste was imported in 2014 (Table 3).

An assessment of the hazardous waste generation trends for Maine from 1993 through 2014 indicates that yearly waste generation totals vary greatly year-to-year, primarily due to the volumes generated by site remediation projects (see Figure 5 of the report).

II. Introduction

The Maine Biennial Hazardous Waste Report for 2013 and 2014 has been prepared by the Maine Department of Environmental Protection ("Department") to fulfill the requirements of 38 M.R.S.A. § 1319-Q (2) for biennial reporting on the generation, transportation, and handling of hazardous waste in Maine. The requirements of 38 M.R.S.A. § 1319-Q(2) include biennial reporting on the following: (1) amount of hazardous waste by type generated, handled and transported in Maine; (2) the amount of hazardous waste by type handled at commercial hazardous waste facilities in Maine; (3) the number of hazardous waste facility permits by type currently active, granted and revoked; (4) the amount of hazardous waste imported from out-of-state generators to in-state hazardous waste facilities, and the amount of hazardous waste generated in Maine exported to out-of-state facilities; (5) a list of hazardous waste facilities in Maine and out-of-state available for use by generators in Maine; and (6) a list of known firms, i.e. licensed hazardous waste transporters, which provide testing, consulting, brokerage, transportation and other services to generators in Maine.

This report includes data from shipments of hazardous waste from all facilities that generated and shipped hazardous waste using a hazardous waste manifest in 2013 and 2014. This includes facilities that are regulated in Maine's three categories of hazardous waste generators: Small Quantity Generators, Small Quantity Generator Plus, and Large Quantity Generators. Small Quantity Generators (SQGs) generate less than 100 kilograms or 220 pounds per month and do not accumulate more than one 55-gallon drum or 440 pounds on site at any one time. SQGs have the fewest regulatory requirements. Those in the Small Quantity Generator Plus (SQG Plus) category also generate less than 100 kilograms or 220 pounds per month, but can accumulate up to three 55-gallon drums or 600 kilograms of hazardous waste on site at any one time. SQG Plus facilities have regulatory requirements in addition to those that SQGs must adhere to. Large Quantity Generators (LQGs) generate more than 100 kilograms or 220 pounds per month or accumulate more than 600 kilograms (1,320 pounds) on site at any one time. This report also includes waste quantities from “one-time generators” of hazardous waste. Examples of one-time generation of hazardous waste include site remedial activity and underground gasoline storage tank removals.

Hazardous waste information was compiled from the Department’s hazardous waste manifest database. All facilities that ship hazardous waste, regardless of quantity, are required to submit a hazardous waste manifest to the Department. Department staff enters shipment information from the manifests into the Department’s manifest database. The unit of measure used in this report for the quantity of waste is pounds. The hazardous waste quantities reported on the manifests which are not reported in pounds (i.e. gallons, liters, etc.) are converted to pounds using conversion factors based upon the type of waste. This report does not include hazardous waste generated and treated on-site under abbreviated treatment licenses since this waste is not transported or documented on manifests, is not entered into the manifest database, and is a relatively minor amount compared to the shipment data. This report also does not include information about waste oil or bio-medical waste generation or shipment. This report includes data and information on universal wastes, a category of hazardous waste. However, the data and information on universal waste is compiled and reported separately from hazardous waste, and includes information on universal waste recycled under manufacturer take-back programs.

III. Waste Generation

In 2013, 21,233,161 pounds of hazardous waste and in 2014, 24,736,683 pounds of hazardous waste were generated and shipped by Maine generators (Table 1). Universal wastes, a sub-category of hazardous waste which includes fluorescent lamps, cathode ray tubes, mercury switches and other wastes, are not included in the totals reported in Tables 1 - 4 and Figures 1 - 5. Data related to the recycling efforts for universal wastes are reported and discussed in this report, on pages 11-17 and in Figures 6 - 11.

Table 1 shows the quantities of hazardous waste generation in Maine for 2013 and 2014 by generator type, while Figures 1 and 2 illustrate the percentage of hazardous waste shipped by generator type for 2013 and 2014, respectively. Generator types in Table 1 include: LQGs and SQG Plus; One-time Generators; and SQGs.

Table 2 provides, by waste types, the quantity of hazardous waste generated in pounds for 2013 and 2014. For a graphical representation of this same data, see Figures 3 and 4. It should be noted that the data in Table 2 and Figures 3 and 4 represent an approximate breakdown of hazardous waste quantities by waste types. The reason for the approximation is that many waste items can be reported under more than one waste type. For example, chemical oxygen demand test vials contain both corrosive chemicals and metals. For waste items where more than one waste code was reported, the quantity is accounted for under the first waste type listed for the waste item described on a manifest.

IV. Waste Generation Trends

The Department analyzed hazardous waste trends since 1994 for SQGs, SQGs Plus, and LQGs, as illustrated in Figure 5. Two different sets of data and corresponding trend lines are plotted in the graph below.

The upper trend line is the total amount of hazardous waste generated in Maine, which includes hazardous waste from site remediation as well as manufacturing and commercial activities. This trend varies considerably from year to year depending on the number of remediation projects underway during each year and the volume of clean-up wastes generated from such projects. For example, the peaks that occurred in 1997, 2001, 2003, 2007 and 2011 were a result of major remediation or clean-up projects. Listed below are specific remedial projects that produced significant volumes of hazardous wastes during peak years of hazardous waste generation:

Year	Site	Waste Type	Volume (lbs)
1997	O'Connor	PCB's	19,913,721
2001	Meddybemps	Various	23,043,935
2003	Eastland Woolen Mill	Chlorobenzene solvent	14,242,000
2003	National Semiconductor	Chlorinated & non-chlorinated solvent	6,654,000
2007	HoltraChem Manufacturing	Mercury metals & concrete	3,000,000
2007	Portsmouth Naval Shipyard	Lead waste	2,000,000
2011	Portsmouth Naval Shipyard	Lead waste	11,500,000
2011	Callahan Mine	PCB's	>5,000,000
2012	Portsmouth Naval Shipyard	Lead waste	>2,000,000
2012	Callahan Mine	PCB's	>3,000,000
2013	Portsmouth Naval Shipyard	Lead waste	>6,000,000
2013	Callahan Mine	PCB's	4,000,000
2014	Casella Waste Systems	PCB's	>7,000,000
2014	Portsmouth Naval Shipyard	Lead waste	>8,000,000

The overall trend line since 1993 for hazardous waste generated from site remediation projects as well as manufacturing and commercial activities (upper line in Figure 5) represents a weak downward regression (correlation coefficient $r^2 = 0.0696$), with variations due to the volumes generated from site remediation projects.

The lower trend line in the graph shows hazardous waste generated from manufacturing and commercial activities since 1996, excluding site remediation wastes. Increases in hazardous waste generation from manufacturing and commercial activities occurred in 1997, 2000, 2002, 2005, 2007, and 2012, while other years during this period show waste generation from manufacturing and commercial activities either remaining steady or decreasing. During this biennial reporting period, both 2013 and 2014 resulted in decreases in wastes generated from manufacturing and commercial activities. The trend line since 1996 for hazardous waste generated from manufacturing and commercial activities (excluding remediation projects) represents a weak downward regression (correlation coefficient $r^2 = 0.0915$) and shows that waste generation in 2014 (i.e. 8,598,981 lbs.) decrease was 10% less than that generated in 1996 (i.e. 9,548,144 lbs.).

Hazardous Waste Generation Trends Analysis

V. Licenses and Abbreviated Licenses

As of December 2014, there were eighty-eight (88) facilities licensed in Maine to handle, treat or store hazardous waste, including three (3) commercial storage facilities, one (1) commercial treatment and storage facility, one (1) mixed waste storage facility, fifty-eight (58) facilities licensed for beneficial reuse on-site, and twenty-two (22) other facilities for a variety of site-specific licensed activities, and four (4) de-manufacturing of universal waste facilities. Sixteen (16) licenses were issued or renewed in 2013 and sixteen (16) licenses were issued or renewed in 2014. No license revocations occurred in 2013 or 2014. Appendix A provides a list of the facilities in Maine licensed to handle, treat or store hazardous waste.

VI. Import/Export Information

Imports

Approximately 36,054 pounds in 2013 and 39,369 pounds in 2014 of hazardous waste were imported into Maine from other states for treatment or recycling. ENPRO Services of Maine (ENPRO) in South Portland was the receiving facility for 100% of the imported waste in 2013 and in 2014, which consisted of only one waste code type, designated as D001/D018 ignitable and benzene-contaminated hazardous waste. ENPRO is licensed by the Department to treat D001/D018 hazardous waste, i.e. waste gasoline and oil-contaminated water, and to store hazardous waste for subsequent transport to other facilities licensed for treatment or disposal. Table 3 contains the amounts of hazardous waste (D001/D018) that were imported from other states during the reporting period. The amount of waste imported is based on the wastes that are deemed hazardous in the State of Maine, and does not include waste deemed hazardous in another state or country, if that waste (i.e. waste oils) is not considered hazardous waste in Maine. Imports from Massachusetts increased significantly from 2013 to 2014. However, fluctuations in the amount of imports are not uncommon, and depend upon the volume of out-of-state remediation waste which is imported to ENPRO. Over several reporting periods, the amount of hazardous waste imported has not had a singular trajectory. Some years the numbers have increased, while other years have seen significant decreases in the amount of hazardous waste imported into the state.

Exports

Of the 21,233,161 pounds of hazardous waste generated and shipped by Maine generators in 2013, 97% (20,641,899 pounds) was exported to other states and Canada for treatment, storage, or disposal. Of the 24,736,683 pounds generated in Maine in 2014, 96% (23,861,239 pounds) was exported to other states and Canada. For a complete breakdown of wastes exported to other states and Canada, see Table 4 below.

VII. Maine Waste Handled at Commercial Hazardous Waste Facilities in Maine

In 2013, 341,538 pounds of hazardous waste generated in Maine and in 2014, 908,107 pounds of hazardous waste generated in Maine was shipped to licensed treatment or storage facilities (TSF), i.e. commercial hazardous waste facilities, within the state. ENPRO Services of Maine in South Portland received approximately 341,538 pounds of Maine-generated waste in 2013 and 907,159 pounds in 2014 of Maine-generated waste consisting primarily of waste gasoline and water mixtures. Other than the gasoline-contaminated wastewater treated on-site, the remaining hazardous waste (primarily waste gasoline) received by ENPRO is ultimately sent out of state for treatment and/or disposal. Additionally, Portsmouth Naval Ship Yard, which is a licensed storage facility, authorized to receive hazardous and universal wastes from other military facilities (to store, bulk, and subsequently ship to licensed treatment or disposal facilities) received 0 pounds of hazardous waste in 2013 and in 2014 received 948 pounds of hazardous waste generated at military facilities located in Maine.

VIII. Hazardous Waste Facilities

A listing of commercial hazardous waste facilities within the United States is provided in Appendix B. The listing is from U.S. EPA's ECHO database which can be found at <http://echo.epa.gov>. The listing includes the two commercial hazardous waste facilities in Maine which are licensed by the Department: Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in Kittery (for waste generated by military facilities); and ENPRO Services of Maine in South Portland which treats waste gasoline and oil-contaminated wastewaters. Portsmouth Naval Shipyard can only accept hazardous waste from other military facilities. ENPRO Services of Maine can accept hazardous waste from other generators. In addition to those two facilities, Central Maine Power's North Augusta Service Center (CMP - NASC) in Augusta is a Department-licensed hazardous waste facility for storage of PCB wastes generated off-site by CMP. CMP-NASC can only accept waste PCB generated by CMP facilities.

IX. Transporters

Maine's hazardous waste generators are required to ship their wastes using licensed hazardous waste transporters. Transport companies apply to be licensed annually by the Department. The majority of transporters are full-service entities that also provide testing, consulting, and other services associated with transportation and disposal of hazardous wastes. The Department licenses the company, the conveyances, and the conveyance operators. Driver's records are reviewed. The companies, once listed, are placed on a list of licensed transporters which is available to the public. A complete list of transporters, their site and mailing addresses, and phone numbers is supplied in Appendix C and is available on the Department's web site at <http://www.maine.gov/dep/maps-data/documents/activehaztrans.pdf>. Appendix D provides a list of consulting firms that the Department is aware of (in addition to the licensed transporters in Appendix C) which offer services in hazardous waste testing, consulting, brokerage, waste exchange and other hazardous waste related services. Inclusion of a firm on this list does not constitute an endorsement from the Department.

X. Universal Waste

The Universal Waste category was created to encourage the proper management and recycling of specific hazardous wastes. A universal waste is a hazardous waste that is specifically designated as a universal waste because it is widely generated. Small businesses that typically do not generate other hazardous waste may generate universal waste.

Universal wastes include mercury or lead containing lamps (Sodium Vapor, HID or fluorescent), mercury thermostats, cathode ray tubes (CRTs), non-leaking polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) lamp ballasts, mercury devices such as mercury thermometers and switches, mercury switches from automobiles, and certain types of batteries, such as NiCd, lithium, silver oxide, mercury oxide, and sealed lead-acid batteries (alkaline batteries do not exhibit a hazardous waste characteristic and are not included). Data on the quantities of universal waste items collected at municipally-owned central accumulation facilities, and at sites sponsored by Call2Recycle, The Big Green Box, and the Thermostat Recycling Corporation (TRC), is included in this report. This data may include household waste which meets the description of universal waste, including electronic devices containing circuit boards.

Universal waste shipments are tracked by either a log system, through the use of Uniform Bills of Lading (UBOLs), or reports from manufacturer take back programs. The UBOLs are entered into the Department's manifest database. Universal waste can be collected at central accumulation facilities (company or municipally owned) and commercial consolidation facilities before being shipped to a recycling facility. Universal Waste going to a recycling facility must be documented on a UBOL. The Department compiled the data for this report by reviewing the manifest database, reports from the TRC, The Big Green Box, and Call2Recycle manufacturer take back programs, and reports of motor vehicle mercury switch collections from the Alliance of Automobile Manufacturers, Subaru, the Truck Manufacturers Association and the Recreational Vehicle Industry Association. Figures 6, 7 and 8 show the number of items that were shipped for recycling or disposal from 2005 through 2014 in a line chart format. The universal waste is split into three charts because of the difference in scale between some of the items. The pie charts contained in Figures 9 and 10 display the percentages of each type of universal waste per year. Figure 11 illustrates the total number of all universal waste items that have been sent for recycling for the years 2003 through 2014. The graphs clearly show the increases in recycling of electronic devices and CRTs beginning in 2011 and continuing in 2013 and 2014. The large spike in handling electronic devices and CRTs is attributed to e-Waste Recycling Solutions (a licensed electronics de-manufacturing facility) receiving over a million electronic devices and CRTs, including some from out of state handlers, in conjunction with the e-waste product stewardship program.
